Name: Miss Sylvie Parris
Date of Birth: 26-Feb-2022

Sylvie came in with Mum and younger brother Elias for Occupational Therapy to the clinic.

It was lovely to see Sylvie today and to observe her using some of the strategies you have been working on such as asking for help and using her words with Elias. As we commented today, she is trying these strategies but her play partner is not always following her requests! This is tricky when you are not 1 yet!

Update:

Kristy's father has been in for surgery. Kids have had a bit of snuffle and Elias getting some teeth.

Mum had neuro appointment, not confirmed MS. MRI on Friday. Could be other immune conditions.

Josh has had 2 weeks off, working from home some days.

Sylvie been going to family day care.

Kristy shared a moment she noticed with Sylvie at the park with a group of children- as we unpacked this it sounds like the function of the behaviours observed was she was trying to 'connect' with them wasn't sure how to

Keep trying:

Add another strategy for Sylvie- get her to give Elias something else to play with

Today, she did lovely turn taking with the puzzle.

She explored the blocks, Frozen dolls, Bluey house and stickers.

Discussed cognitive assessment, these assessments can be very useful

Plan:

LITTLE MINDS

OCCUPATIONAL THERAPY

Else to make a weekly schedule for Sylvie including.

Keep looking into the childcare options. Childcare may provide opportunities for role models, educators to teach (you guys are her safe people), lots of practice and cognitive stimulation. It may also break up your week/time of Sylvie and Elias together to reduce this trigger area.

Times for term 2:

6/5 @ 12pm office

30/5 @ 2pm via zoom

3/6 @ 12pm office

20/6 @ 2pm via zoom

Kristy seen over zoom for Occupational Therapy appointment for Sylvie today:

Update:

Increase in separation anxiety. Kristy couldn't shower without Sylvie. Increase in separation anxiety can be typical at this stage.

Frequent waking over night and only wanting Mum. Mum often feeding baby. Doesn't respond to Dad and will escalate until Mum comes in.

Dad back to work.

Mum investigating some health issues. You are both doing a wonderful job given these big changes and unknowns so be kind to yourselves.

Sensory regulation options, trampoline would be amazing. Unfortunately this is something NDIS won't cover.

Sylvie accessing a daycare program.

Strategies:

Consistency with bed time.

Choose a plan- if this means a mattress or cot on the floor SO everyone sleeps than this might be the plan for now and we review later.

Check on typical things like is she cold, drink bottle ect

Plan:

Think about the option of family day care sooner. More time to settle her in before you actually need it.

This transition can be supported with gradual building of time, connection building with educators, social stories, visual support ect.

I can pop out for a visit at childcare too and support any issues.

Name: Miss Sylvie Parris
Date of Birth: 26-Feb-2022

Sylvie came in for initial Occupational Therapy session with Mum and Dad.

Sylvie explored a range of toys in the room: Bluey house, Duplo blocks, magnetic tiles and tracks, sensory tiles, sensory box and sensory tools.

Today:

- Gathered background history from parents.
- Discuss current concerns and family priorities:
 - Investigating asyums development
 - Exploring Sylvie's sensory profile
 - Regulating behaviours such as hitting others.
- Observations of Sylvie playing the clinic.
- Developed action plan:
 - Sensory profile, Else to send via email
 - Minimise risks where possible e.g. remove dangerous toys, supervision around baby
 - Prompt Sylvie with 'what to do' not what no to do e.g. gentle hands, toys on floor, blocks are for building. As she may not be able to turn the what not to do into what to do in the moment.
 - Document some of the 'before'- what is happening before the 'big behaviours or big feelings'. This will be super important for developing an action plan.
 - Increased supervision around other children and try to jump into to provide social coaching/scaffolding for interactions to increase success with peers.
 - Apply for NDIS Early Intervention funding. Can apply here: <https://www.intereach.com.au/service/early-childhood-approach-ndis/>
 - Co-regulation, super important. Children will go big if we go bigger.
 - Review with a Speech Therapist. I will send the details of a recommended SP.
 - Seek referral for paediatrician
 - Limit choices to try to reduce cognitive overload and allow her to use this in other areas.
 - Explore kindergarten options for 2025. Suggest looking at Shine Bright in White Hills.

Lovely to meet you all today and I look forward to continuing to work with you.

Sylvie and Mum came in with Mum for Occupational Therapy appointment to the clinic.

Update:

Can start FDC next week. Discussed transition plan. Find out names. Have a good bye plan. Settle her in. Leave when you feel comfortable. Short stay then pick up.

NDIS plan approved.

Discussed bed time and sleep plan.

Strategies discussed:

Start FDC, stay with her, keep positive.

Remind her the toys stay at Marlenes. Start this from day 1.

A routine board to help Sylvie understand the time frame on the day could be helpful.

Clock for count down.

Take photos to do a social story.

Send photos to Else, I can make a social story for you.

Model all feelings are okay.

Repair is important, the feelings are okay.

Move her toys up the table to give her some space away from Elias.

Continue practising turn taking.

Go with the floor bed.

Thanks for the opportunity to meet via Zoom for Sylvie's Occupational Therapy session. Main points discussed:

- Joshua shared that last week was tough with an increase in Sylvie's screaming behaviours. We discussed the function of these behaviours—every behaviour has a purpose, whether it's to get something or to escape from something. It's important to dig deeper into these with Sylvie. Joshua also noted that screen time, sugar, and not getting her way can act as triggers.
- We reflected on behaviour is communication. As I mentioned, I prefer a focus on connection rather than just attention. We'll also explore the sensory-based supports further, along with an updated Sensory Profile for Sylvie.

- Sometimes, I feel Sylvie might be trying to "get" something, and when that's not successful, it shifts to "escape" behaviors, which can lead to dysregulation. As we know, our go-to strategy is co-regulation. The more we understand the "why" behind the behaviors, the earlier we can intervene. We won't always get it right, but it's important to be kind to ourselves along the way.

- Continue practicing turn-taking activities, with short, clear turns to build patience and understanding.

- There's a concern that Sylvie may be mimicking language. She appears to understand, but we may need to adjust our expectations since she might not fully grasp it yet.

- We unpacked three situations where Sylvie exhibited screaming (behavior), discussed what the underlying function might be, and brainstormed ways to address this:

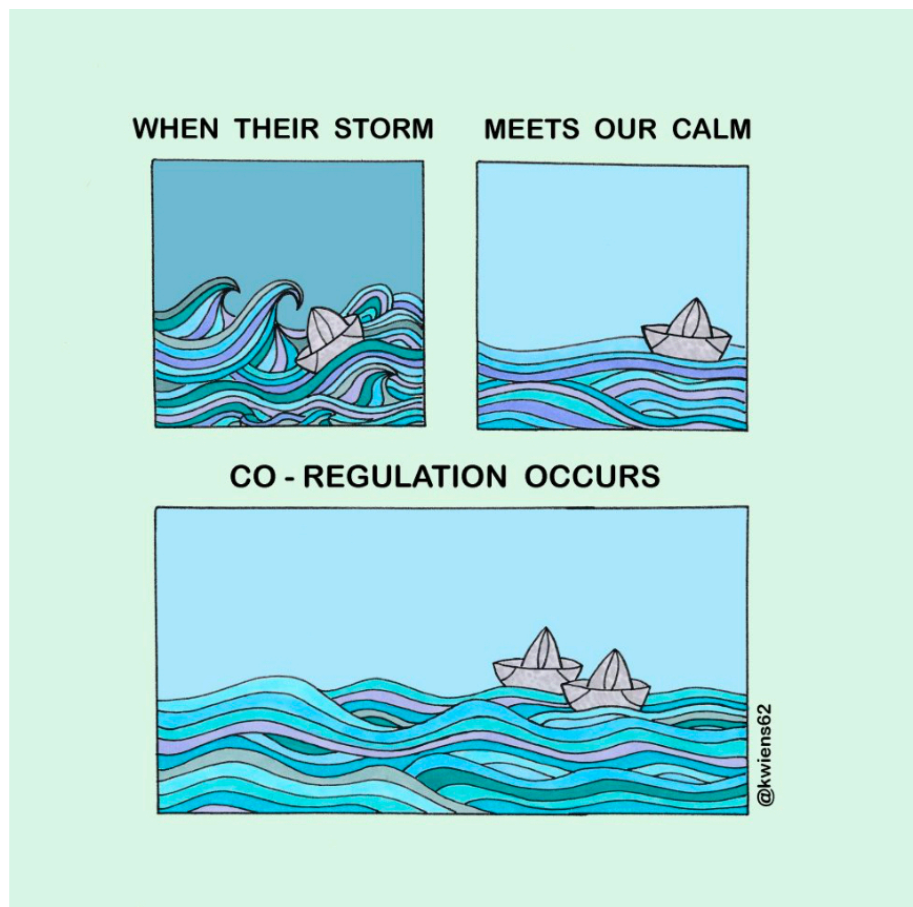

- Give options for example, "2 Weetbix or 1 Weetbix."
- Explicitly teach expected behaviours for instance, teaching how to wait for a slide, practicing this, and possibly encouraging other children move more quickly (!!). Praise her when she waits patiently.
- Clear finish points: Help her understand when activities are ending, visual timers are great for this.

LITTLE MINDS

OCCUPATIONAL THERAPY

- Co-regulation. Parents are really understanding the importance of this approach, which is fantastic. I love this visual to explain the process we are doing with our little ones.

- Transition to Family Day Care:

- * The first two mornings went okay.
- * It's still unclear if the setting is meeting our needs for Sylvie, so we're considering other options. Perhaps trying a daycare, the one near La Trobe University might be a good fit.
- * Else will prepare a one-pager for family care on tips and tricks to support Sylvie.

- I love the idea of a weekly visual schedule and even better if you can make one with pictures and images that are meaningful for Sylvie. I'll see if I can find the link to camera that prints the visuals and send it through.

- Joshua and Kristy are following up with the speech therapist and play therapist, both of whom will be wonderful additions to the team.

Next session: 8th April at 12pm at clinic

Hi Kristy and Josh,

It was great to see you all this morning 😊

Here is the link to the Vineland questionnaire we spoke about which will be helpful for the Paediatrician:

<https://qosa.pearsonclinical.com/qosa/1bec95e7-7349-4500-af0b-684737bc23aa>

As discussed, this questionnaire is REALLY long and some of the questions are a bit odd but, you can close it to come back to it if you're needing a break. Once you have finished this one, I can generate a summary report with all the scoring for the Paed.

I have also attached the sensory profile questionnaire we completed together – this gives a snapshot summary of Sylvie's current sensory processing in comparison to other children.

I am happy to run through this at our next session as well so, you have an understanding of what it is identifying for Sylvie 😊 From my perspective, it has not identify anything new or things I wasn't expecting.

As always, happy to chat about anything more as you need!

PLEASE NOTE: My books are currently CLOSED as I work through my current caseload plus a waiting list. Please feel free to contact me to discuss potential referrals.

Thanks so much and warm regards,

Hello,

No worries at all – thanks so much for getting it done 😊

I have attached the report here for you for the Paed tomorrow – Sylvie has scored 'adequate' in comparison to same-aged children across all categories.

This means that there are no major differences in the way she is participating in things in comparison to other kids 😊

Paed will be able to look at the subdomains and other areas to review her skills.

Looking forward to seeing you both later today!

Hi Joshua and Kristy,

It was lovely seeing both of you today.

My notes for today's session are below.

Please let me know if you have any questions or concerns.

Sylvie attended speech pathology appointment with her mother Kristy. Sylvie maintained attention and concentration for the full duration of the appointment and played happily throughout. A visual schedule was used to support Sylvie with transitioning between activities and at the end of the session.

SOCIAL PUPPETS:

Sylvie completed skill #2 today which was about saying goodbye. Sylvie played with puppets while building with magnetic tiles. The puppets were used to make suggestions about how to expand her building and to respond gratefully to complements and suggestions. When the activity was finished, Sylvie said goodbye to the puppets when prompted.

EVERYDAY SPEECH:

Sylvie began play skills unit 2: playing fairly. Sylvie watched a video explaining what sharing looks like and how others feel when we do and don't share. Sylvie responded appropriately to all prompts in this video and appeared to understand the content.

SOCIAL BOUNDARIES:

Sylvie listened to the Boundary Song 2x today. Clinician and mother sang along with some of the lyrics while Sylvie watched the video.

END TRANSITION:

Clinician redirected Sylvie to the visual schedule and explained that all activities has been completed. Sylvie sang There's A House song with her mother before knocking down her magnetic tiles building. Declarative language was used to encourage Sylvie to pack up the magnets (i.e. "I wonder if we can fold up your little square to make little ones, let's see how tall we can make our stack of small squares"). Sylvie appeared to respond positively to this type of encouragement. Sylvie's big emotions were acknowledged and validated until she was prepared to leave the clinic room.

HOME PRACTISE:

- Being fair with others online activity:

- <https://slp.everydaysspeech.com/activity/being-fair-with-others/661d19e0-5992-4d99-b0fe-1c6ca499570f>
- Encourage Sylvie to say hello and goodbye to her friends and family when she doesn't do so automatically.

Hi Joshua,

Thanks for reaching out to discuss increasing the length of Sylvie's appointments.

While it is wonderful to hear that Sylvie has lots of NDIS funding, I wouldn't recommend increasing the length of her sessions.

60-minute appointments are generally a good timeframe for children Sylvie's age, and we may be pushing her concentration too far.

I also think that 60-minute appointments allow us a good amount of time to address different areas of Sylvie's social communication and don't think that increasing the length of her appointments would be therapeutically beneficial.

Having a shorter timeframe also allows us to work on Sylvie's skills transitioning at the end of appointments. If we are increasing the length, she may be too ready to leave by the end of the appointment for us to practise this effectively.

I hope this makes sense. Please let me know if you'd like me to clarify further.

Kind Regards,

Naomi Whyte

Hi Kristy and Joshua,

It was lovely seeing Sylvie for her speech appointment today.

Sylvie's grandmother asked if a picture of your new house would be helpful for the moving away social story.

I think that it would be beneficial to include what the house looks like if you're happy to send this through.

I will then have it ready to take home for Sylvie's next appointment.

My session notes are below.

Please let me know if you have any questions or concerns.

Sylvie attended speech pathology appointment with her grandmother. Sylvie maintained attention and concentration for the full duration of the appointment and participated well in all activities. Sylvie participated in child let play between structured activities to support engagement, build rapport and provide breaks for emotional regulation. A visual schedule was used throughout the session to support Sylvie with anticipating the order of events and when the session was ending.

SOCIAL STORY:

Clinician read social story to Sylvie to support her with understanding what to expect during her move to Dubbo. Sylvie reported that they'd started putting things in boxes to move to their new house.

SOCIAL PUPPETS AND MAGNETIC TILES:

Sylvie learnt about "accidents" today and that when you have an accident (e.g dropping something important) it's important to say sorry, even if you didn't mean to do it. Sylvie built a swimming pool with magnetic tiles while learning this concept.

SIMILAR AND DIFFERENT:

Sylvie continued to learn about "similar" and "different" concepts to support her with eventually understanding the concept of different brain types. Sylvie was given 2 cards and asked to think of things that were similar about them and things that were different. Sylvie completed this activity with minimal support.

Hi Joshua and Kristy,

It was lovely seeing Sylvie for her speech appointment today.

My session notes are below.

I have almost finished Sylvie's assessment report to support her autism diagnosis. I have attached a form that I need you to fill out so that I can comment further on her pragmatic and social language.

As I am now finished with her language assessment, I would be happy for next session to be a play-based session with Sylvie and Elias for me to observe how they interact together and what strategies you are currently using to support their social interactions.

Sylvie attended speech pathology appointment with her father Joshua. Joshua reports that they have been staying at Bendigo Early Parenting Centre where they checked out of this morning. Joshua reports that this involved different professionals interacting with the family during their stay. Sylvie maintained attention and concentration for the full duration of the appointment and participated well in all activities.

EMOTIONS BINGO:

Sylvie played a game of bingo with visuals representing different emotions. Sylvie required some support identifying emotions (e.g. surprised face, confused face, frustrated face) however appeared to really enjoy this game and requested that we play again in future sessions.

SAME VS DIFFERENT:

Sylvie began exposure to the concepts "same" and "different" while playing Rainbow Unicorns. In this game players are required to find unicorn tails that are the same colours as the unicorn heads they are given. This goal was addressed to support Sylvie to eventually apply "same" and "different" to neurodiversity.

MAGNETIC TILES AND SOCIAL PUPPETS:

Sylvie played with magnetic tiles while using social puppets to understand that it's important to say "sorry" when we accidentally hurt someone or make them feel sad. This was demonstrated by clinician's puppet accidentally knocking down Sylvie's magnetic tile creation and then apologising. Sylvie appeared frustrated when this occurred however was not significantly distressed, likely due to it being knocked over towards the beginning of the activity before her creation had become too complex.

PLAYDOUGH:

Sylvie played with playdough at the end of the session and demonstrated wonderful imaginative and creative play skills.

Hi Joshua and Kristy,

Just following up to see if you've had a chance to fill out this form.

This is important to complete Sylvie's assessment report.

If you're unable to scan it to email it back that's fine. Pictures of the completed form is sufficient for me to interpret the results.

Thanks so much,

Hi Kristy and Joshua,

It was lovely seeing Sylvie for speech this morning.

My session notes are below.

Please let me know if you have any questions or concerns.

Sylvie attended speech pathology appointment with her father Joshua. Sylvie maintained attention and concentration for the full duration of the appointment, participated well in all assessment activities and transitioned well between reinforcer games and assessment activities.

CLINICAL EVALUATION OF LANGUAGE FUNDAMENTALS - PRESCHOOL 3 (CELF P3):

Sylvie began working through the CELF P3 assessment to support assessment report for paediatrician.

Sylvie completed the following subtests today (3/6 completed):

- Sentence Comprehension: 11 - age appropriate
- Word Structure: 17 - above average
- Expressive Vocabulary: 15 - above average

Index Scores:

- Core Language: 128 (97th %ile) - above average

The core language score is considered to be the most representative measure Sylvie's language skills and provides an easy and reliable way to quantify a child's overall language performance.

This assessment will be continued in Sylvie's next appointment to determine her receptive and expressive language index scores.

Kind Regards,

Naomi Whyte

Hi Kristy and Joshua,

It was lovely seeing Sylvie for her speech appointment today.

My session notes are below.

Please let me know if you have any questions or concerns.

Sylvie attended speech pathology appointment with her father Joshua. Joshua reports that they will be moving to Dubbo next year for work and they would like a social story to support Sylvie with the transition. Joshua completed Descriptive Pragmatic Profile for Sylvie's comprehensive ASD assessment report while Sylvie participated in activities. A visual schedule and visual timer were used to support Sylvie with transitioning between activities and at the end of the session.

POOP SHOOT:

Sylvie played Poop Shoot with clinician to support her play and turn taking skills. Sylvie took turns well during this activity and displayed largely age-appropriate play skills, with some directive requests during play (e.g. "we can just use our hands"). Sylvie transitioned with minimal support at the end of this activity.

PLAYDOUGH:

Sylvie played with Playdough and demonstrated strong imaginative play skills, making a cup of tea out of playdough and pretending to play with it. Sylvie also showed good sharing skills through sharing the cup of tea with her father. Sylvie required moderate support to transition away from this activity once the visual timer had run out.

SOCIAL PUPPETS:

Sylvie played with magnetic tiles while completing her social puppets activity today. During this activity, Sylvie learnt that it's important to ask for help when we need it, and we can say something like "can you help me?" or "can I have some help?" when we are asking for help.

SIMILARITIES AND DIFFERENCES:

Sylvie learnt about the concepts "similar" and "different" today. After being provided with an explanation of both concepts, she identified characteristics of strawberries and tomatoes that were similar and different.

EMOTIONS BINGO:

Sylvie played Emotions Bingo to practise identifying emotions based on facial expressions. Sylvie completed this activity with minimal support and accurately identified all emotions on her bingo board.

Sylvie's Speech Pathology Appointment 29/08/2025

Hi Kristy and Joshua,

It was lovely seeing Sylvie for speech today.

My notes are below.

If you would like a catch-up session via video call, I have the following appointment times available over the next couple of weeks:

- Monday 1st September 1:30
- Thursday 4th September 3:00
- Monday 8th September 8:30
- Tuesday 9th September 2:00, 3:00
- Thursday 11th September 1:00, 3:00, 4:00

Sylvie attended speech pathology appointment while her father and younger brother watched and waited at reception. Sylvie maintained attention and concentration for the full duration of the appointment and participated well in all activities. A visual schedule and visual timer were used successfully to support Sylvie with transitioning between activities and at the end of the session.

PLAYDOUGH:

Sylvie selected playdough as the first activity for her visual schedule.

Sylvie's play was cooperative today and she accepted suggestions made by clinician regarding what animals to make out of playdough. Sylvie independently transitioned away from this activity when visual timer had run out.

EVERYDAY SPEECH:

Sylvie selected everyday speech as the next activity on her visual schedule. Sylvie continued unit 2: Everyone Can Play. She watched a video explaining how to respond when others say they don't want to play. This video explained that "no" is a boundary word and that we need to respect people's boundaries. It also explained that we can ask someone else or play by ourselves instead when this happens. Sylvie then completed a sequencing activity where she was required to put the steps of asking someone to play in order (i.e. first get their attention, then ask to play, then play together if they say yes). Sylvie also reviewed puzzle and maze activities from previous sessions. Sylvie independently transitioned away from this activity when the visual timer had run out.

THE BOUNDARY SONG:

Sylvie listened to and sang along to the boundary song today. It was beautiful to see Sylvie singing along to some of the boundary phrases modelled in this song.

SOCIAL PUPPETS:

Sylvie selected social puppets as her next activity on her visual schedule. Sylvie completed skill #5 today - Saying thank-you. Sylvie's puppet needed reminding to say "thank-you" when clinician's puppet handed her magnetic tile shapes requested. Clinician modelled "That's okay, I'll find someone else to ask" as an example of respecting the boundaries of others. Sylvie independently transitioned away from this activity once visual timer had run out. Sylvie independently transitioned out of the clinic room at the end of the session.

Session notes

Service: 2:00 pm, 6 Aug 2024 Clinic non-NDIS (Speech Therapy ECEI)

Session notes

Date

6 Aug 2024

Start time:

2pm

Participants:

Josh, Kristy, Else, Sylvie, Renae (SP)

Plan for session

- Observation - Sylvie during session
- Discussion with parents re: concerns.
- Complete Toddler screener

Reported/discussed

- Started toddler screener - Josh and Kristy to complete remaining questions.

Josh and Kristy report:

- Main concerns are behaviours/lashing out at others, particularly younger children.
- Sylvie often preferring to play independently. Some triggers for behaviours appear to be when others do things she does not like/has not planned for, loud noises, being told "no".

Observed

- Sylvie interacting with clinic environment, playing with toys and activities.
- A number of times during the session, Sylvie appearing to overhear what Renae and her parents were discussing. She would comment on what was being spoken about, or model an action (e.g. demonstrating swimming when overhearing parents talking about swimming lessons).
- Sylvie appearing to use a varied vocabulary during session. No obvious challenges with receptive language based on observations and questions answered throughout screener.

Plan for next session

- Discuss remaining prompts and recommendations for next steps.

To Whom It May Concern:

Re: Sylvie Parris
DOB: 26/02/2022

I am writing to support Sylvie Parris, NDIS funding application for Early Intervention Services. Sylvie was referred to Occupational Therapy by her parents due to concerns regarding her development and experiencing significant challenges related to sensory processing, social skills, managing daily routines, and behaviours at home.

I have observed that Sylvie has sensory processing difficulties that manifest in overwhelming reactions to everyday stimuli, such as sounds, textures, and lights. These challenges not only hinder her ability to engage in typical activities but also lead to heightened anxiety and withdrawal in social situations, impacting her overall development.

In addition to sensory issues, Sylvie requires support in developing social cognitive skills. At this age, learning to interact with peers is crucial, yet Sylvie finds it difficult to understand social cues, which leads to difficulties in sharing and taking turns and behaviours of concern. This can result in frustration and isolation from peers (as well as parent isolation from groups), further complicating her ability to form friendships.

Moreover, Sylvie faces challenges with managing daily routines. Transitions, such as getting ready for meals or bedtime, showering, washing her hair often result in resistance and emotional outbursts. With structured routines and targeted strategies, she can learn to navigate these changes more effectively, fostering a sense of security and independence.

Sylvie poses a safety risk; she often does not always respond to safety commands, requires constant supervision around peers, and can hyper-focus, causing her to miss important social cues. Access to therapy will help her develop essential skills to ensure her safety and enhance her ability to interact with others.

Sylvie is at high risk for further developmental delays and is currently making limited progress without intervention. In addition to ongoing therapy, I recommend conducting a sensory profile and a developmental skills assessment to better understand the extent of her delays and to establish relevant, functional goals for Sylvie. I also suggest that Sylvie participate in speech therapy and join an early intervention social skills group to enhance her development.

In regard to Occupational Therapy, I am recommending:

- 26 hours for 1:1 session with Sylvie in the clinic
- 10 hours for kindergarten consultations to support Sylvie with a successful transition to kindergarten.
- 10 hours for home sessions to consult on home-based goals and provide parent support in home environment.
- 4 hours for assessment reports and NDIS reporting requirements.
- $1000 for low tech assistive technology to access resources to support Sylvie home-based goals.

I strongly urge you to consider funding these vital early intervention services for Sylvie. Investing in her development now will create lasting positive outcomes, enabling her to thrive as she grows. If you have any questions or queries, please don't hesitate to contact me on 0491307503 or else.littlemindsot@gmail.com

Kind Regards
